Brotherhood Beyond Buen Retiro

REFLECTIONS FROM A 25-YEAR REUNION

Back in November, standing shoulder to shoulder with my pledge class at our 25-year reunion, something clicked. It wasn't new information—my head had always known it—but in that moment, my heart finally caught up: brotherhood doesn't end at graduation. In many ways, that's when it truly begins.

As I listened to my pledge brothers laugh, reminisce, and reflect, I was struck by how this bond has deepened over the years. Over the past quarter-century, these men have built businesses together, carried one another through seasons of loss, and remained a consistent source of strength and joy. The connection we formed at Buen Retiro has continued to shape who we are—and outside of family or faith, these may be the most enduring relationships of our lives.

But what moved me most wasn't just the friendships within our own class. It was the stories of brothers reaching across generations—mentoring younger Fijis they never overlapped with at UT, offering career advice, internships, and the kind of hard-earned wisdom you only get from someone who's walked the road ahead. Just this week, I got a text from a brother who was a pledge when I was a senior. Today, we're in a bourbon-and-books group—a multi-generational fellowship that's still growing, still sharpening each other decades later.

The older I get, the clearer it becomes: nearly every lesson I've learned about leadership, character, and community had its roots in my Fiji years. My pledge semester taught me persistence, accountability, service—and the quiet but powerful act of simply showing up for your brothers.

And maybe the most important leadership lesson of all: Give back. Pay it forward.

So, I invite you to take a moment. Reflect on what the Tau Deuteron Chapter and Buen Retiro have meant to you. Then ask yourself—how can you invest in its future? Whether through financial support, mentoring, or opening a door for a younger brother, your contribution matters.

This place helped shape who we are. And if we stay connected, it will keep shaping those who come after us—teaching them, as we were taught, to become men of courage, responsibility, scholarship, and character.

Making Worthwhile Memories

The past year has been full of remarkable Texas Fiji achievements and growth. Our members demonstrated their dedication to service, academics, and brotherhood in countless ways.

Fiji Leads and Serves

Philanthropy remained a top priority with brothers logging over 700 service hours and raising an impressive $33,000 for charitable causes. Of that, $28,000 was donated to the Spence Sarcoma Fund to support TumorGlow, a cause close to the hearts of many in the Chapter. The additional $5,000 went to the B+ Foundation, helping families affected by childhood cancer.

On the academic front, Texas Fiji once again proved its commitment to excellence, with a Chapter-wide GPA of 3.56—well above the men's campus average. Brothers continue to uphold high standards in the classroom, contributing to a culture of scholarship that complements our other values.

Class Trips

The pledge class of 2022 enjoyed a magical voyage on the Rio Grande River in Big Bend National Park during the annual canoe trip, while the graduating seniors celebrated their accomplishments in Las Vegas on the annual mom's trip last spring. Our exquisite chef, Josh White, and the seniors also spent a day reminiscing at Franklin's Barbecue, another Fiji tradition.

Our involvement across campus and in the Austin community continues to flourish. Members are active in student government, academic organizations, and volunteer programs that benefit local schools and nonprofits. These connections help us expand our impact and reinforce our role as leaders on campus.

Pig Dinner Scholarships

The Road Ahead

We are in a strong position with the Texas IFC and national organization, which allows us to preserve the traditions and values that shape Texas Fiji. Anticipation and excitement are abundant within the Chapter heading into the 2025 football season, hoping to win the National Championship. As we look to the future, we remain committed to the values that have guided us for generations—service, excellence, and brotherhood. With strong momentum and a shared vision, Texas Fiji is poised for another incredible year.

Excellence in Service and Friendship

GENE SHEPHERD '78 BELIEVES IN FAMILY AND FIJI

Having transferred to UT as a sophomore, Gene Shepherd '78 wanted to find the right fit in his new community. He knew little about Fiji before that transfer, but the diversity of membership from across Texas, combined with the humble but high-quality brothers who became his pledge class, made it the right choice.

Gene focused intensely on his engineering studies (playing catch-up after his freshman year at a liberal arts college), which did not leave a lot of free time beyond the classroom. He made the most of that time with his Texas Fiji brothers, becoming president of his pledge class and eventually of the whole Chapter.

“Many of my deepest friendships are from Phi Gamma Delta, which has served as a cornerstone for my personal and professional life,” he said. “From our pledge class there is still a core group of 25 men who communicate and see one another regularly. From my point of view, this is unique aspect of a college experience that few people benefit from.”

Currently, Gene is the CEO (and a founder) of VTX Energy Partners—the fourth energy-focused, private equity backed company he has started and grown with a core group of co-founders. However, his biggest joy and pride is raising his three sons with his wife, Robin (“although, she gets much of the early credit here!”). Their youngest, Ben '19, became a

Texas Fiji too, and all three live and work in Austin, where Gene and Robin still reside.

Philanthropy has always been a pillar of the Shepherd family. While living in Houston, Robin, Gene and their three boys regularly volunteered at a food pantry, and in Austin they have supported (through time and treasure) a number of organizations focused on homelessness, affordable housing, and education. All three sons are Eagle Scouts, so Gene has been heavily involved with the local scouting chapter. At UT, he serves on two boards and is a 2017 recipient of the Cockrell School of Engineering's Distinguished Engineering Graduate Award.

“Serving our community has been hugely beneficial to our family, and we have received much more than we have given.” Gene sees philanthropy as a crucial Texas Fiji value too, allowing the Chapter to introduce new members, while helping brothers embrace and accommodate societal changes through generations.

Gene is grateful to Fiji for opening new doors in life and relationship building, and he hopes future brothers will embrace the same opportunities and have the courage to take on new risks in life. Outside of his family and professional endeavors, he enjoys spending time with his wife and boys and keeping active outdoors.

Alumni News
